

SMUS Activities Berlin Summer 2022

Important note to members of TU Berlin, SMUS and the CRC 1265:

For most events, you can participate, but you will have to register – sometimes quite early. The information is marked red below. Please also note that, if you have missed the registration deadline, it is not possible to join in later (we are really sorry, but we have to do bookings, and it is simply too complicated to re-organize. If you need to cancel, please tell us asap in order to avoid nonrefundable costs).

Also note that – unless otherwise stated – participation is free, but everybody has to pay for their own food and drink. This (unfortunately) includes international guests who have to take this out of their travel stipend or scholarship.

09.00 – 19.00 Excursion: A historical walk through Berlin neighborhoods 1: Reformstädtebau & genossenschaftlichen Wohnungsbau der 1920/30er

The excursion will explore the relationship between architecture/urban design and society. In this context, we will also discuss what “urban infrastructure” is and what makes it sustainable. We will select different neighborhoods which were originally planned for different social strata but today are inhabited by varying social groups in order to see how urban design and social class are entwined. In addition, the walks will continue to specify the ethnographic method of “cultural crossreading” which we developed in the context of the so-called CRC 1265 “Harz Trip” in 2019 and which aims at decolonizing social science methodology.

Sunday, 19.06.

09.00 – 19.00 Excursion: Covid-19 in Poor Neighborhoods 2: Marzahn (SMUS Action 2)
A combination of a workshop and city walks will link SMUS Action 2 “Covid-19 in Poor Neighborhoods” (Gabriel Faimau, Elcid Li & Nina Baur) with the projects “Knowledge and Goods” (CRC 1265 A03) and “Apples and Flowers (both Nina Baur & Elmar Kulke). Before the Covid-19 pandemic, the project “Knowledge and Goods” used the example of buying and selling fresh produce to investigate the communicative actions of consumers belonging to different social milieus in four Berlin neighborhoods as well as those of retailers (so-called “intermediaries”) as actors in the commodity chain. We showed both how consumer-retailer-interaction is embedded into the built environment and how it mediates between places (shops, the home), territorial space (the neighborhood) and the space of pathways (commodity chains). Food suppliers also provide a firm infrastructure of neighborhoods and are located in relation to other types of infrastructure (such as other shops, schools, hospital, public administration or traffic nodes). In 2019, also explored advantages and challenges of the ethnographic method of “cultural crossreading” in several city walks. Based on this prior work, we will return to these neighborhoods in explore how they have changed after the Covid-19 pandemic.
